FOR THE TIME
IT TAKES TO APPRECIATE
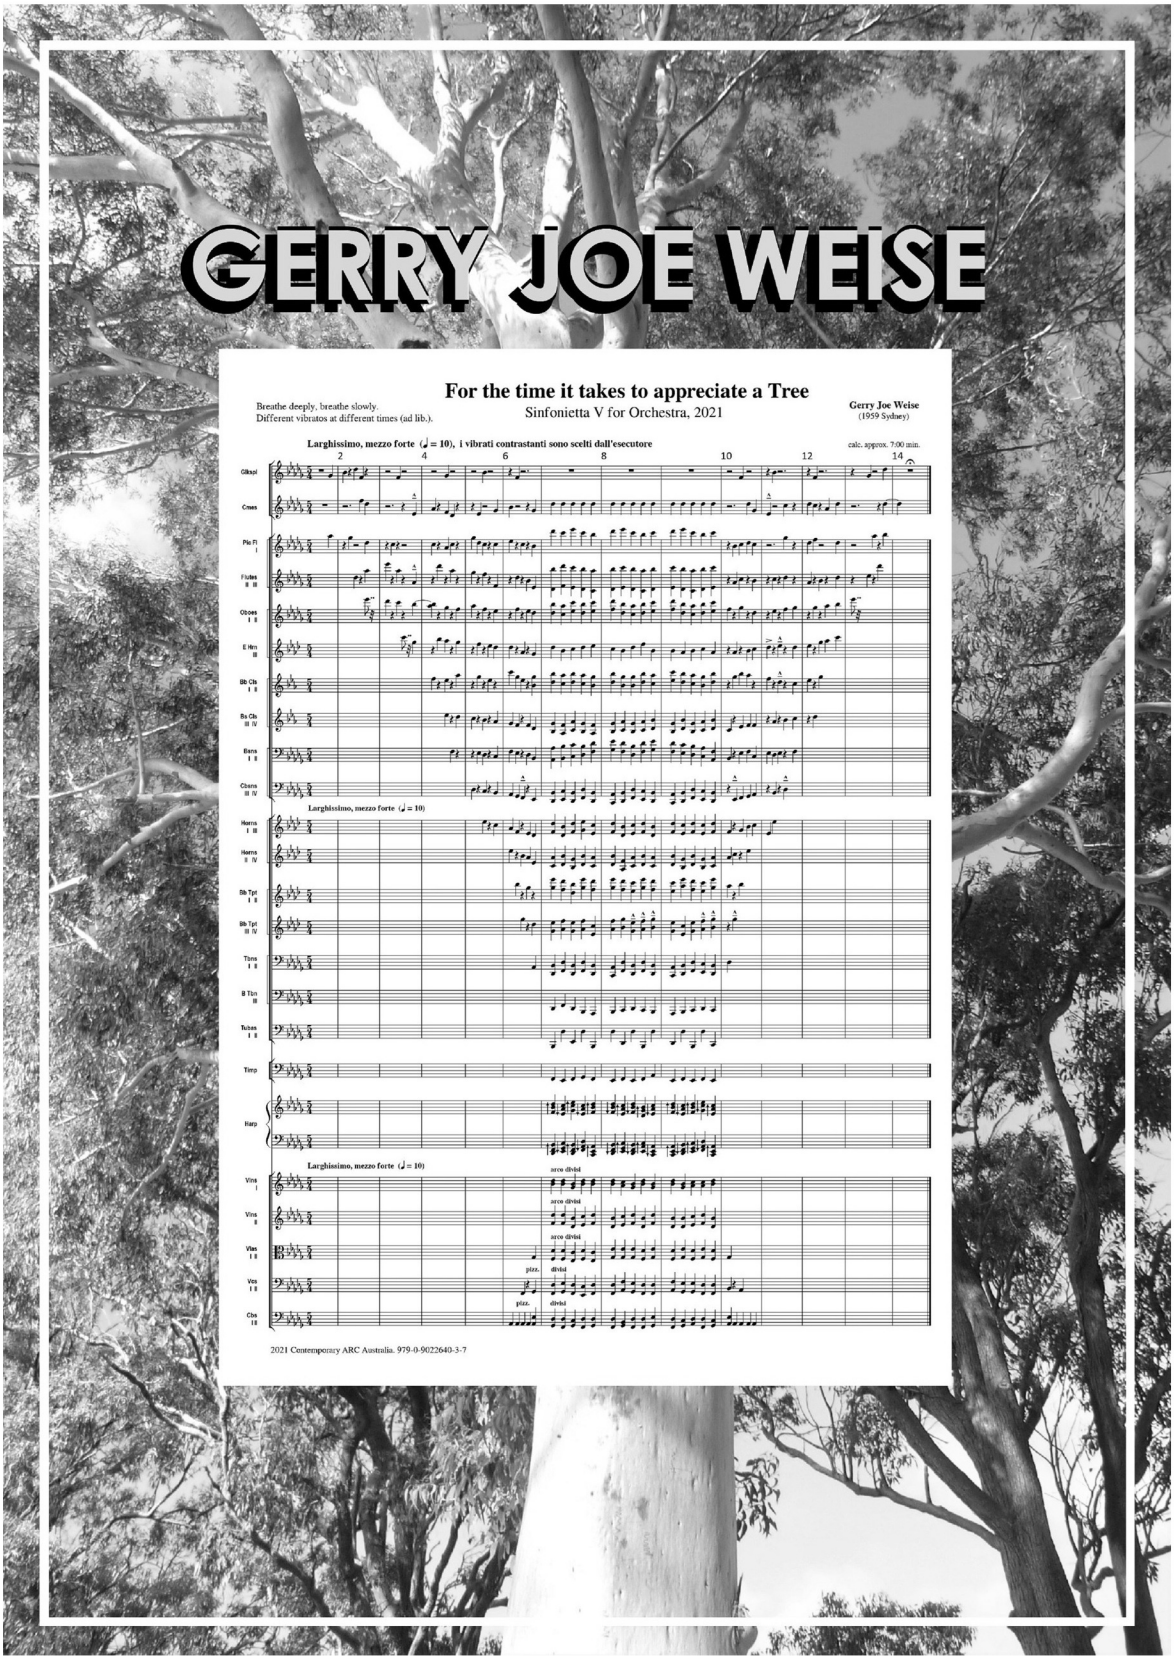
A TREE

GERRY JOE WEISE



title: For the time it takes to appreciate a Tree.
subtitle: Larghissimo, Tonal Wall 1.
series: Sinfonietta No.5.
date: 2021.
composer: Gerry Joe Weise (b.1959).
publisher: Contemporary ARC Australia.
country: Australia.
score: Orchestral concert score for conductor.
genre: 21st-century classical music, classical music, contemporary music.
ISMN: 979-0-9022640-3-7

Orchestral instruments:
1 Piccolo flute, 2 Concert flutes, 2 Oboes, 1 Cor anglais,
2 Clarinets (Bb), 2 Bass Clarinets (Bb), 2 Bassoons,
2 Contrbassons. 4 French horns, 4 Trumpets (Bb),
2 Trombones, 1 Bass Trombone, 2 Tubas.
Timpani, Tubular bells, 1 Glockenspiel, 1 Harp.
Violins I and II, Violas I and II, Violoncellos I and II,
Contrabasses I and II.

For the time it takes to appreciate a Tree is my Sinfonietta No. 5, developed in 2021.

Designed for a maximum wall of sound by a minimum number of notes, creating a colossal soundscape.
Silence before, and after the played 6:20 minutes by the orchestra, rounds off the performance to approximately 7:00 minutes.
Just enough time to stand at the base of a tree, and to admire from-top-to-bottom-to-top once again.

The conductor and the orchestra, must breathe deeply and slowly, to execute this orchestral piece.
The musicians of the orchestra shall choose ad libitum, which types of vibratos to use during the performance of the Sinfonietta.
They can be slow, medium, fast, or anywhere in between. They can be chosen at random at any time, during rehearsals or concert performance.
The conductor may suggest at rehearsals, or signal during a performance, an alternative type of vibrato for a musician.
Sinfonietta No.5 will sound best with many contrasting vibratos.
It is at the conductor's will, that the variations of mezzo-forte as decibels of volume, will be performed.

Why should we take the time to appreciate a tree ?
Trees are vital.
As the biggest plants on the planet, they provide us oxygen, store carbon, maintain the soil and give life to the world's wildlife.
They also provide us with the materials necessary for tools, shelter, and food.
Trees are the longest living species on earth, and they are the link between the past, present and future.

That is why, the music score of this Sinfonietta No. 5, delves into the past, and embodies the present state of opinion, while composing for future generations.

Thank you,
Gerry Joe Weise.

"La feuille"
par Antoine Vincent Anault.

De ta tige détachée,
Pauvre feuille desséchée,
Où vas-tu? - Je n'en sais rien,
L'orage a brisé le chêne,
Qui seul était mon soutien.

De son inconstante haleine,
Le zéphyr ou l'aquilon,
Depuis ce jour me promène,
De la forêt à la plaine,
De la montagne au vallon.

Je vais où le vent me mène,
Sans me plaindre ou m'effrayer:
Je vais où va toute chose,
Où va la feuille de rose,
Et la feuille de Laurier.

"The leaf"
by Antoine Vincent Anault.

From your detached stem,
Poor withered leaf,
Where are you going? - I don't know,
The storm has broken the oak,
Which was my only support.

With his fickle breath,
The zephyr or the north wind,
Since that day I have been promenading,
From the forest to the plain,
From the mountains to the valleys.

I go where the wind takes me,
Without complaining or being frightened:
I go where everything else goes,
Where the rose leaf went,
And the bay leaf.

La feuille (antoine Vincent Arnault) De ta tige détachée,
Pauvre feuille desséchée, Où vas-tu?- Je n'en sais rien.
L'orage a brisé le chêne, Qui seul était mon soutien.
De son inconstante haleine, Le zéphyr ou l'aquilon
Depuis ce jour me promène, De la forêt à la plaine,
De la montagne au vallon. Je vais où le vent me mène,
Sans me plaindre ou m'effrayer: Je vais où va toute chose;
Où va la feuille de rose
Et la feuille de laurier.

INSPIRATION

REFERENCES

Imagery of an Idea.

The essence of nature, including trees, played a role in Béla Bartók's creative process. He believed that the beauty and complexity of nature could inspire musical ideas and forms, contributing to his unique compositional style.

Themes of Nature.

Igor Stravinsky expressed a desire to convey nature's beauty and fear through his music, suggesting that each instrument in his compositions represents a part of nature, like a plant sprouting from the earth. His work often reflects themes of nature, including trees, as seen in pieces like "The Rite of Spring" and "The Firebird."

Concept of Distribution.

Karlheinz Stockhausen compared the distribution of leaves on a tree to the organization of sound in music. He suggested that changing the position of each leaf would not alter the essence of the tree itself. This analogy reflects his belief in the importance of structure and relationships within music.

Symbolism in Music.

Stockhausen often used natural imagery, like trees, to illustrate complex musical ideas. He believed that just as trees have a fundamental structure, music should also have an underlying framework that allows for creativity and exploration.
